

LAWLESS ARRESTS OF WOMEN.

NO CRIME TO BE ON THE STREET AND BREATHE, RULES FINN.Magistrate Discharges Prisoners Whose Only Offense Had Been Speaking to Men—If Clergymen Complain Let Them Get Proper Evidence, He Adds.Twenty-seven women who were arraigned in the Yorkville police court yesterday had been unlawfully arrested on the streets, according to Magistrate Finn, who started the policemen by his plain talk.The first woman arraigned was Annie Greenwald, who was charged by Detective Naughton of the Fifth street station with soliciting."I saw her speak to two men on Second avenue last night," the detective said.
"Did you hear what she said to them?" asked the Magistrate."No, sir."
"Then you don't know that she solicited.
The men might have been relatives, so far as you know.""I know that she is a street walker," explained the detective."Come down to this specific violation of law that you charge her with. What evidence have you that she solicited men last night?""I have none."
"Then it was you who violated the law.
The arrest of this woman was unlawful, and she is discharged," announced the court.The detective arraigned Ida Williams, charging her with loitering at Second avenue and Second street."Do you hear the charge against you, young woman? Being on the street and breathing," said the Magistrate to the prisoner.The woman kept still and the detective told the Magistrate that she had been arrested in the precinct before. The Magistrate said he did not care what he wanted to know was the offense she had committed on Saturday night. The detective repeated that she was "loitering.""Walking up and down the street, I suppose."

"Yes, that's it," said the policeman.

"Do you know any law prohibiting her from walking along the street?"The policeman didn't. The Magistrate said he didn't either, and discharged the woman.A third woman was charged with stopping men on the street and speaking to them.
The policeman did not hear what she had said to them."Why don't you get evidence against these women if you expect me to hold them?" said the Magistrate."We have been arresting them right along," said the policeman, when he knew their character and see them talking to men on the street.""Well, you need not arrest any more in this way while I am in this court. The arrests are clearly unlawful and I do not propose to be a party to such proceedings.
I will discharge all such women brought before me, and you will bring your own evidence and the taxpayers' money in such a business."The detective asserted that he was only acting on the orders of the superior."I don't care whose orders they are," declared the Magistrate. "I will not uphold the unlawful arrests ordered by any captain or inspector.""We have complaints from clergymen in our precinct about these women and we want to oblige the clergymen.""Let the complaining clergymen get their young men to assist in getting legal evidence against the women they complain of. Let them bring their young men up from Chinatown, where they are so active, and obtain evidence in these cases. Your superiors have no right to order you to do an illegal act," said the Magistrate as he discharged the women.Other policemen from the same precinct and some from the East Twenty-second street station arraigned women on the usual affidavit charging them with loitering.
The Magistrate said he didn't know what the women said to the men to whom they spoke on the street. All of the twenty-seven women with one exception were discharged.
The one got a $5 fine.BAND OF BOY BURGLARS.
Mystery of Many Jersey City Robberies Solved by Confession of 14-Year-Old.Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City believes that the mystery of a series of burglaries in the do downtown section has been cleared by the confession of fourteen-year-old Willie Blair, who says he was a member of a gang of juvenile robbers which has operated with much success in the last three months.Willie was caught while trying to pawn a gold watch stolen from Henry Meyer's candy store, 138 Newark avenue. Pawn-broker Rice looked at Willie and then at the watch and concluded that it fitted the description sent out by the police of a watch which had been stolen. He called in Policeman Fennecy, who arrested Willie.The boy had a heart to heart talk with Detective Sergeant William B. Prescott and Alexander Gallagher, and said he guessed the jig was up. He peached on the members of "de gang" and gave a list of the places they had robbed. The police made a collection tour around the pawnshops and recovered property stolen from seven stores and houses, including four watches, watch chains, silverware, opera glasses and forgettees.The gang is composed of boys whose ages range from 12 to 14 years. It is believed that some adults have been encouraging them to steal. Some of the boys who took stolen articles to the pawnshops had notes from their parents asking the pawnbrokers to take the stuff off their hands. The police are now looking for the young thieves and several arrests will be made in a day or two.The boys entered houses which had been vacated by the occupants for the summer and carried off booty at their leisure. They broke into the stores at night, using jimmies to force doors and windows. The police gave out the following list of places which had been robbed:Henry Meyer's candy store, 138 Newark avenue, safe rifled; Albert E. Roy's grocery store, 88 Newark avenue; Brown's Trading Stamp Company, 88 Newark avenue; George H. White's drug store, 100 Newark avenue; Mrs. Harriet Roman's residence, 304 Grove street; Mrs. Betz, 248 Eighth street, and Mr. Craven's residence in Mercer street.PAID $100 TO BE A PLUMBER.
And Then Wasn't One, So Issues Charges Hart With Extortion.John Hart of 425 East Seventy-sixth street was held in $1,000 bail for examination yesterday in the Essex Market police court on a charge of extortion. Jacob Isaacs of 28 Madison street had appeared against him, declared that Hart promised to secure for him a master plumber's license on the civil service examiners on the payment of $100. Isaacs said he paid the money and then got an examination blank, which he studied for weeks. Hart, he says, then demanded more money, and he became suspicious and consulted the Civil Service Commissioners, who advised him to have Hart arrested.In the police court yesterday Hart refused to make any statement.Killed by Jumping From Moving Car.
Mrs. Rose Bryerton, 60 years old, who lived in Cherry street, Montclair, N. J., was instantly killed Saturday night by jumping from the rear of a trolley car a block from her home. She did not wait until the conductor stopped the car.Have you seen our new "college" hat? A little beauty;

YES, GLOISTEIN IS IT AGAIN.

HE FITS OUT GUS ANGER FOR KLONDIKE EXPLORATION.The Retired Baker Has Misfortunes on Paper Which Cause Gloistein to Ship More Supplies—Now the Fisherman's Lawyers Have Much Work to Do About It.August J. Gloistein, president of the Gloistein Fishing Club, consulted his lawyers yesterday with a view of bringing what he said was "a suit for fooling a man by false pretenses," against Gus Anger, the retired baker.Anger is interested in tin mines in Alaska and a company of which he is a director has established a city there known as Tin City. The city is way up in the Nome district. Several weeks ago Anger, who is an old friend and a tormentor of Gloistein, visited him in his hotel in East Forty-second street and said:"I am sorry, Gus, but I have got to go up to the Klondike again. The last time I was there I nearly froze to death. I have got to start to-night. I may never see you again.""Ach, dot vos too laud," said Gloistein.
"Here, Gus, let me give you some good visky und cigars. Dey tell me dot visky is von tollar a drink und cigars four tollars is in dot iceburg block." Gloistein loaded Anger's two valises with bottles of visky, brandy and cigars."Good-by, Gus," said Anger. "I may never see you alive again.""Good-by, good-by," replied Gloistein.
As Anger trickled down the face. "If you get in droubles, telephone me by cable or vireless wire."Anger, who has made the trip to the Klondike region several times, has friends among the hotel clerks in hostleries across the continent where he stopped. They helped him out in his joke on Gloistein.
Anger never left New York on this occasion, but he wrote letters to these hotel clerks in Syracuse, Buffalo, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, San Francisco and Tacoma, enclosing letters supposed to be written from these points and asking the clerks to enclose them in envelopes of their respective hotels and mail them to Gloistein at various times designated.The first letter came back from Syracuse.
It read in part: "Dear Gus—I am going by easy stages. I had a terrible experience last night. The hotel caught fire and I had to get out by the back door. I lost all my good presents, all my clothes, but I saved my money. Send me some more of your good case goods to the Iroquois Hotel in Buffalo, where I next arrive.""You bet I do," said Gloistein, as he despatched the case.The next letter received by Gloistein read: "I just left leaving the last night when I met with a terrible accident.
The train ran off the track and several people were killed. I lost all my luggage.
I got a sprained ankle, but an agent to continue my journey on crutches. I had this case of yours on the train, but it was all demolished. My next stop is at Denver."Gloistein read a letter to a crowd of Anger's friends in his hotel and wept.
About a week ago, Gloistein got a letter saying that Anger had left Tacoma for the Klondike. He said he was in an icebox, and I may be frozen in an icebox," the letter read.At the outing of the John Stiebeling Association of the West Forty-seventh street station yesterday afternoon, Gloistein grabbed Anger by the coat collar."At monkey doodle business is dis?" he shouted.Anger's explanations were not satisfactory to Gloistein. Friends separated them.
Anger said that to-day he would send a check for all the wet goods that Gloistein scattered over the country in Anger's supposed wake.XAVIER TO LILLIAN:
"I Die Be Happy"—The Young Man Didn't Die.Xavier Fazio, 30 years old, of 148 West Forty-third street, was arraigned in the West Side court yesterday, charged with attempted suicide. He was found unconscious in his room on Saturday by his landlady, a French woman. He had swallowed a quantity of potassium permanganate.Roundman Brady and Policeman Barron of the West Forty-seventh street station were called in and they sent for an ambulance. Dr. Johnson of Roosevelt Hospital pumped out Fazio's stomach and took him to Bellevue as a prisoner.The boy is the son of a wealthy farmer in Italy. Three months ago he quarrelled with his father over a girl and ran away from home, coming to this country. In his room was found this note, evidently written to the girl over whom he had quarrelled with his father."DEAR LILLIAN: I die be happy. The life was not for me. I kiss you, XAVIER."Gloistein was rolled several yards until he got to some of his friends to look after him.HIS SLIMNESS SAVED HIM.
Young Man Caught Between Trolley Cars Loses Clothes, but Is Not Badly Hurt.TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 10.—Thomas Connors, 19 years old, got on the wrong side of a trolley car bound for Pennington and didn't notice the car coming from Princeton. At the place where he got on the tracks are close together. Connors was rolled several yards between the two cars before persons who saw his predicament could notify the motorman of the Pennington car to stop.When the car was stopped Connors's clothes were in rage and he was bruised and badly scratched a out the face and body, but not seriously injured. Connors owes his life to the fact that he is thin. A stout Lawrenceville student was caught between cars at the same place about a year ago and crushed to death.The Wanamaker Store

The UNDER-PRICE STORE Makes Remarkable Presentations TodayThe counters that have recently been devoted to clean-up offerings, small, but stirring in their economies, today bravely set forth some of the best merchandise offerings of the month—tempting groups of China and Glass, unusually low-priced Blankets and Quilts—but chiefest of all is the superb exhibition presented by theSeptember Sale Of SILVERWARESSo extraordinary in its variety and beauty is this collection, that it would deserve all the Main Floor Aisles, if the reorganization of our Main Floor did not make that impossible.The Quadruple-Plated Hollow-ware is one of the finest collections offered under-price in many a day. All of it was regularly made, with the expectation that it would bring the full regular prices.
Some of it comes to us because patterns are being discontinued, but much of it is here out of pure courtesy to us, to brighten and enlarge this great September occasion.The Rogers Extra-Plated Flatware will be welcomed by all housekeepers with refurbishing in mind.
The details follow:

The China Sale Spreads a New Feast for Housekeepers TodayLast week the China Sale smashed every previous selling record in September Sales. It was a splendid public endorsement of Wanamaker merchandising.Of course there was every reason under the sun that it should do so. The reputation built by past occasions was a great factor. Assembling fifty per cent. more wares to select from was another.
Then the remarkable number of groups of all sorts of wares AT JUST HALF PRICE probably created more enthusiasm still.All the great foreign and American concerns with whom we have large operations co-operated with us in preparing extraordinary features for this Sale which all supposed would be the first in our New Building. WE were disappointed; but New York housekeepers secure the same splendid bargains that the new store should have offered.ARE YOU SHARING THE EXTRAORDINARY ECONOMIES?
The second full week starts this morning with scores of new cases opened, and their contents arrayed for your selection. But don't wait until others have secured the finest offerings. Never was such an array of beautiful and practical Chinaware and Glasware, such varied and artistic Bric-a-Brac presented at such low prices. The list tells only a small part of the story:

Says He Came From Heaven to Re- lieve Hell On Earth. ORANKE, N. J., Sept. 10.—Andrew Beranek, who is demented, escaped from his boarding place in Joyce street, West Orange, to-day. According to a local police official the missing man believes he was "sent down from heaven to raise hell on earth." He boarded with a family named Buckingham. This morning it was decided to have him committed to an asylum, so one of the men of the house went to Dr. William M. Egan to have Beranek re- leased.

EXPENSIVE ALDERMEN.

East Orange's Legislators' Salaries Compared With Those Paid in Other Towns.EAST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 10.—William B. Harris, representing the Third ward in the East Orange City Council, has been gathering data on Aldermen's salaries in cities all over the country, and proposes making an effort to introduce a reform in East Orange. He has prepared a bill providing an annual salary of $300 for each Councilman. The salary now is $2 for each Council meeting or of a committee.Mr. Harris found that in eleven cities the Aldermen serve without compensation.
This is the case in Springfield, Mass., with 62,000 population; Trenton with 72,000, and Newport, Fitchburg, Taunton, Melrose-port, Meriden, Waterbury and Portland.
Of the thirty-three cities from which Mr.
Harris received replies only one has a governing body more expensive than East Orange. That is Kansas City, Mo., and there the Councilmen receive $4 a meeting and are limited to sixty meetings and there are twenty-eight members.East Orange, with ten Council members, paid out $5,000. Orange, with fifteen Aldermen, expended the smallest sum, $1,025. The average of all the places was about $300 a year, and most of the cities are larger than East Orange.

BRUTAL, SAID THE MAGISTRATE.

Breen Condemns a Policeman for Beating a Prisoner.Magistrate Breen in the Tombs police court yesterday took occasion to censure Officer Oscar Schultz of the Oak street station for brutality. Schultz was the complainant against Tom Costello, a bricklayer, of 38 East 108th street, who was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.
When arraigned in court Costello was covered with cuts and bruises and his head bandaged.Schultz said that he ordered the defendant from a saloon at 5 East Broadway and that Costello hit him with a stone, whereupon he made use of his club.One witness said that Schultz had used his club so vigorously that bystanders had cried "shame."Magistrate Breen was much incensed by this recital. Addressing the complainant he said: "I know just what happened; you tried to arrest the defendant. He showed fight, and you thought it a proper opportunity to get in a little fancy stick work. You should be ashamed of yourself for a clear abuse of authority."The case was adjourned to give the defendant time to get witnesses.

WRONG BODY TO CEMETERY.

Grove, Supposed to Have Been Killed by Trolley, Turns Up All Right.ORANKE, N. J., Sept. 10.—A new complication has arisen in the case of the man found dead and mutilated on a trolley track in Elton. Mrs. Grove of 375 Main street East Orange, identified the body as that of her husband John by tattoo marks. Grove,
